BIG WELCOME FOR PRINCESS AND DUKE

Airport Greeting

Montreal, Oct. 8. Canadians roared a welcome to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on Monday upon arrival for their first visit to the North American continent. They will make a 31-day tour including a stop in Washington, DC, and dinner with President Truman.

An American-built strato-cruiser — the 60-ton "Canopus" — brought the Princess and her husband to Montreal after a "first rate trans-Atlantic flight of 17 hours and 11 minutes. They alighted 19 minutes ahead of schedule.

The eager crowd considerably short of the 100,000 which had been expected sent up a great shout as the Princess, wearing a mink jacket and a blue-grey wool dress with a small matching velvet hat, stepped through the plane's doorway. The Duke was in his naval uniform.

The first glimpse the crowd had of the 25-year-old heiress presumptive and her attractive husband was a port-hole view. Both had then faces glued to the windows as the plane rolled to a halt.

As the Princess emerged from the plane's doorway, the Governor-General stepped forward to offer his hand.

The first shot of a 21-gun salute jarred the chill air. The band played "God Save the King." It was a dramatic moment in the brief welcoming programme.

Smiling graciously, the Princess, after being greeted by the Governor-General and the Prime Minister, inspected a guard of honour of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

She and her husband then entered an open car for a drive around the airport en route to the siding where a train waited to take the Royal party to Quebec where the tour will get under way officially on Tuesday.

The crowd sent up cheer after cheer as Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip smiled and waved at them from their open car.

Before she had entered the car, Princess Elizabeth shook hands with each of the crew

As the tension deepened last week in Persia, 16 more men of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company returned to England from Abadan. Here is one of them passing through London Airport after the arrival of the group by plane.—London Express.

Attlee Heckled

Witham, Essex, Oct. 8. The Prime Minister, Mr. Clement Attlee, was heckled on the high cost of living and Persia when he opened an election speech by denying Conservative claims that Britain had lost prestige.

Challenges from the audience grew to an uproar when a woman shouted, "We are paying three or four times as much for lots of articles."

Mr. Attlee retorted through the din, "I know you are. If you were in Australia you would be paying six or eight times as much, and in France 20 times as much."—Reuter

Ailing Dr Mossadegh Reaches New York

United Nations, N.Y., Oct. 8. Dr Mohammed Mossadegh, Iran's aged and ailing premier, arrived today with a plea for American support in Iran's oil dispute with Britain.

The chartered Royal Dutch Airlines DC-6 carrying the Prime Minister touched down at New York's International Airport at 4:24 p.m. GMT, ending a 33-hour flight from Teheran. United States public health officers were the first to see the 76-year-old premier, who has fainted several times in public during the months of the oil crisis tension.

Cleared by the Customs aboard the ship, Dr Mossadegh appeared shaky as he came out and posed for a picture at the top of the gangway. Bundled in a long black overcoat, he held a brown Hornung in one hand while Mr. Nasrollah Entezam, Iranian President of the UN General Assembly, supported his other arm as he waded. On the observation platform some 150 Iranians waved American and Iranian flags as he stepped on the airport runway. He was immediately led to an enclosure, where he read a three-minute statement in Iranian in a low, hoarse voice.

After praising American history and the American people, he said, "We are assured you will oppose any steps taken to increase the suffering and miseries of small nations. The sole reason for the lack of development, the deprivation and misfortunes of Iran during the last 50 years is the fact that a cruel and imperialistic company... has been trying to derive large annual profits of hundreds of millions of dollars."

PEOPLE ROBBED

"The natural resources of the needy and naked people have been robbed more and more every year on a progressive scale through all sorts of intrigue and setting-up of puppet governments. The only difference we have with the former Anglo-Iranian Oil Company crystallized itself around one point. It is for the sake of the said company that the British government has taken the role of guardian and defender. This is to the Security Council. It is unbelievable to me that a group of shareholders of the former company should have been able to take advantage of an existing international organization for the continuation of their policy of the national wealth of a nation and to maintain the same sort of an anti-national

EGYPT ABROGATES 1936 TREATY

Talks With Britain Broken Off

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

Cairo, Oct. 8. The Egyptian Prime Minister, Nahas Pasha, tonight formally announced that the Egyptian Government had broken off negotiations with Britain, declaring the time had now come to denounce the 1936 treaty and the 1899 Sudan condominium agreement.

He placed before Parliament a decree denouncing the treaty and entailing an end to the privileges enjoyed by British troops in the Suez Canal.

Nahas Pasha's decree declared that King Farouk was King of Egypt and the Sudan.

A spokesman of the British Embassy said here tonight: "Egypt's unilateral abrogation of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty has no legal force."

He added that the position of British forces stationed in the Suez Canal zone "remains unchanged."

In his statement, made to a crowded Chamber, Nahas Pasha said:

"It is time our Government should fulfil the promise given in the last Throne speech by taking the necessary steps to abrogate the treaty and the Sudan condominium agreement of 1899."

Nahas Pasha had previously acquainted his own Wafdist Parliamentary group with the contents of his momentous address.

His speech in Parliament was frequently interrupted by applause.

This was one of his last appearances before Parliament.

Nahas Pasha began by giving a history of Anglo-Egyptian relations.

He said that the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian Treaty was signed under the menace then surrounding Egypt from the Axis powers. He said that the defeat of the Axis and the establishment of the United Nations put an end to all menace.

The decree he submitted provides for a law governing the constitutional status of the Sudan upon the end of the condominium.

A constitutional assembly will be elected by the Sudanese themselves to draft a constitution on the following basis:

"Democratic rule in the Sudan; a unicameral or bicameral legislature in the Sudan elected by the people; a Cabinet formed by the Sudanese; Parliament to share with the King in making laws, budget, taxes, etc.; foreign affairs and defence in the hands of the King."

CAUSES SENSATION

A nationwide sensation has been caused by the announcement made tonight that Egypt had broken off negotiations with Britain in relation to the 1936 treaty with Britain and the 1899 Sudan condominium agreement.

Political quarters here said tonight that Egypt was planning to stop rights and facilities extended to British forces stationed on her territory when the treaty abrogation comes into force with new legislation in the next Parliamentary session.

Egypt would also consider herself free from the provisions of Article 5 of the treaty stipulating that she has no right in her relations with foreign states to take up a stand contrary to the spirit of the treaty.

Further, in case of war or threat of war, Egypt would not give British facilities, including the use of ports, airports and means of communications throughout her territory.

The talks held between the Ambassadors of Britain, France, Turkey and the United States lasted for more than two hours. Now tonight, one of their main problems was to find a way of offering Egypt equal partnership in Middle Eastern defence organization.

The United States was taking direct interest in the matter because of its position on the independence of Middle Eastern states.

All Leave Cancelled

Fayid, Suez Canal Zone, Oct. 8.

All leave for British troops in the Suez Canal Zone towns of Port Said, El-Matruh and Suez was cancelled tonight and troops ordered back to their camps.

A spokesman at General Headquarters here, announcing the cancellation, said: "The forces in the Canal Zone were self-sacrificing and in no way affected by the Egyptian Government's move to abrogate the Anglo-Egyptian treaty."—Reuter memorandum being drafted at the British Embassy would be delivered on behalf of the British Ambassador alone, or together with those of France and the United States—and maybe Turkey.

In any case, it was taken to represent the Anglo-American-French attitude towards the Middle East as a whole within global Western strategic plans.

The decree he submitted provides for a law governing the constitutional status of the Sudan upon the end of the condominium.

Tories Gain In French Election

Paris, Oct. 8.

The first ballot in France's departmental elections yesterday showed a marked success for Conservative candidates and a marked setback for Socialists.

The poll continued the Socialist loss in popularity displayed in the general elections in June.

Final official figures, published this morning, for 814 metropolitan seats, show that nearly a third of their candidates elected in the first ballot—306 out of 961.

The Gaullists, although gaining 10 seats, got less than a tenth of their candidates elected in the first round—53 out of 507.

This constitutes a relative loss in prestige for the Gaullists in favour of Conservatives and Radicals, who also had a third of their candidates elected—223 out of 670.

This fact may have importance for the final ballot next Sunday, since it may induce many candidates to come out as Moderates rather than Gaullists.

PREMIER'S CLAIM

Next Sunday's ballot for the 700 seats not yet filled in metropolitan France will be decided by a simple majority vote.

Premier Pleven claimed the result as a sign of stability in French politics and a defeat for democratic extremists.

He said: "It argued in favour of a regrouping of the Government parties—a call to the Socialists to abandon their present neutrality in Parliament and rejoin the Centre coalition."

Of the 10,877,788 people entitled to vote, 40.3 per cent abstained.—Reuter.

ARABS PUT DEMANDS TO ISRAEL

Tel-Aviv, Oct. 8.
Five Arab deputies whose votes are important to the new Israeli Government today outlined twelve demands for better treatment of the country's Arab minority.

The demands were presented during a 12-hour debate in which Dr David Ben Gurion's new Cabinet was asking for vote of confidence. Seif Eddin Zeoubi of Nazareth, the Arab spokesman, demanded from the new Cabinet:

1. — The abolition of military rule wherever security considerations permit.

2. — The return of relatives of Arab residents.

3. — The restitution of land and property of Arabs living in Israel.

4. — Equitable representation of Arabs in the administration.

5. — The abolition of monopolies of Jewish marketing companies for Arab produce.

6. — Equal prices for Arab produce and mechanisation of Arab agriculture.

7. — The handing over of Muslim religious property from the Ministry of Religion to Muslim hands.

8. — The use of Arabic for official correspondence with Arabs.

9. — An extension of the Arab high school network.

10. — The amendment of the law on ownership of land.

11. — The discontinuance of expulsion of Arab refugees. The entire problem of Arab refugees to be left to the future.

12. — An attitude of respect towards the Arab minority.

Seeking A Lost Town

London, Oct. 8.
A small party of archaeologists are searching at Eridge (Herts) for the Roman town of Sulloniacum, said by authorities to have existed near Brockley Hill.

The archaeologists—members of the London and Middlesex Archaeological Society and of historical societies in Middlesex and Hertfordshire—are trying to determine the site and limits of the ancient town.

A Roman hill found recently and pottery, incinerary urns and cobbled floors unearthed last year are thought to indicate "most certainly" that a Roman site exists in the area.—London Express Service.

PEACE HOPES

London, Oct. 8.

The Conservative and Liberal parties, and part of the Socialist Party, supported the policy of rearmament "not because we are seeking war but because we believe it is the very method by which a reasonable and lasting settlement might be reached," declared Mr Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative Party, in an election speech here today.

"I believe that if the British Empire and Commonwealth, joined together in fraternal association with the United States and the growing power of Western Europe—including a reconciled France and Germany—worked together steadfastly, then the time will come, and may come sooner than is now expected, when a settlement may be reached which will give us peace for a long time. That is what our hearts desire," Mr Churchill added.

He said that the free democracies were re-arming "to prevent Communist Russia, its reluctant satellites, and its ardent partisans spread about in many countries—some of them even here—from beating us all down to their dead level, as they have done as much as they can to people of every country they have occupied during and since the war."

"Unless if you are armed and strong you cannot expect any mercy from the Communists," he said.

BARGAIN POSSIBLE

"But if you are armed and strong you may make a bargain with them which might rid the world of the terror in which it now lives and relieve us all from much of the impoverishment and privations into which we shall otherwise certainly sink."

Mr Churchill continued, "I do not hold that we should re-arm in order to fight. I hold that we should re-arm in order to parley. I hope and believe that there may be a parley."

Commonwealth Division's Fine Showing In Vicious Korea Fighting

REACTION TO STALIN STATEMENT Played Up By Red Newspaper

Moscow, Oct. 8. Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, today devoted a full page to foreign Press reaction to Marshal Stalin's statement on Saturday that Russia had tested an atom bomb.

Most of the page consisted of comment from China and the East European countries on Taes, the official Soviet news agency.

The most enthusiastic reaction was from China where, it was reported, the statement "roused universal joy and satisfaction."

It was "a tremendous warning to the American warmongers, a death blow to the plans of the aggressors and at the same time brought joy and confidence in millions of peace-lovers all over the world."

East European comment also emphasised that the statement had bolstered the morale of the "camp of the peace partisans" and said that the United States had lost a powerful means of pressure and blackmail.

From New York, London, Paris, New Delhi and Rome, Taes reported mainly the front page prominence given to the statement but did not carry Press comments from the Western capitals.

Fuller report from Oslo, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Helsinki showed the big play given to the statement in the Scandinavian Press and radio.

A Finnish newspaper was quoted as saying that the breaking of the United States atom monopoly meant at the same time breakdown of atomic diplomacy.

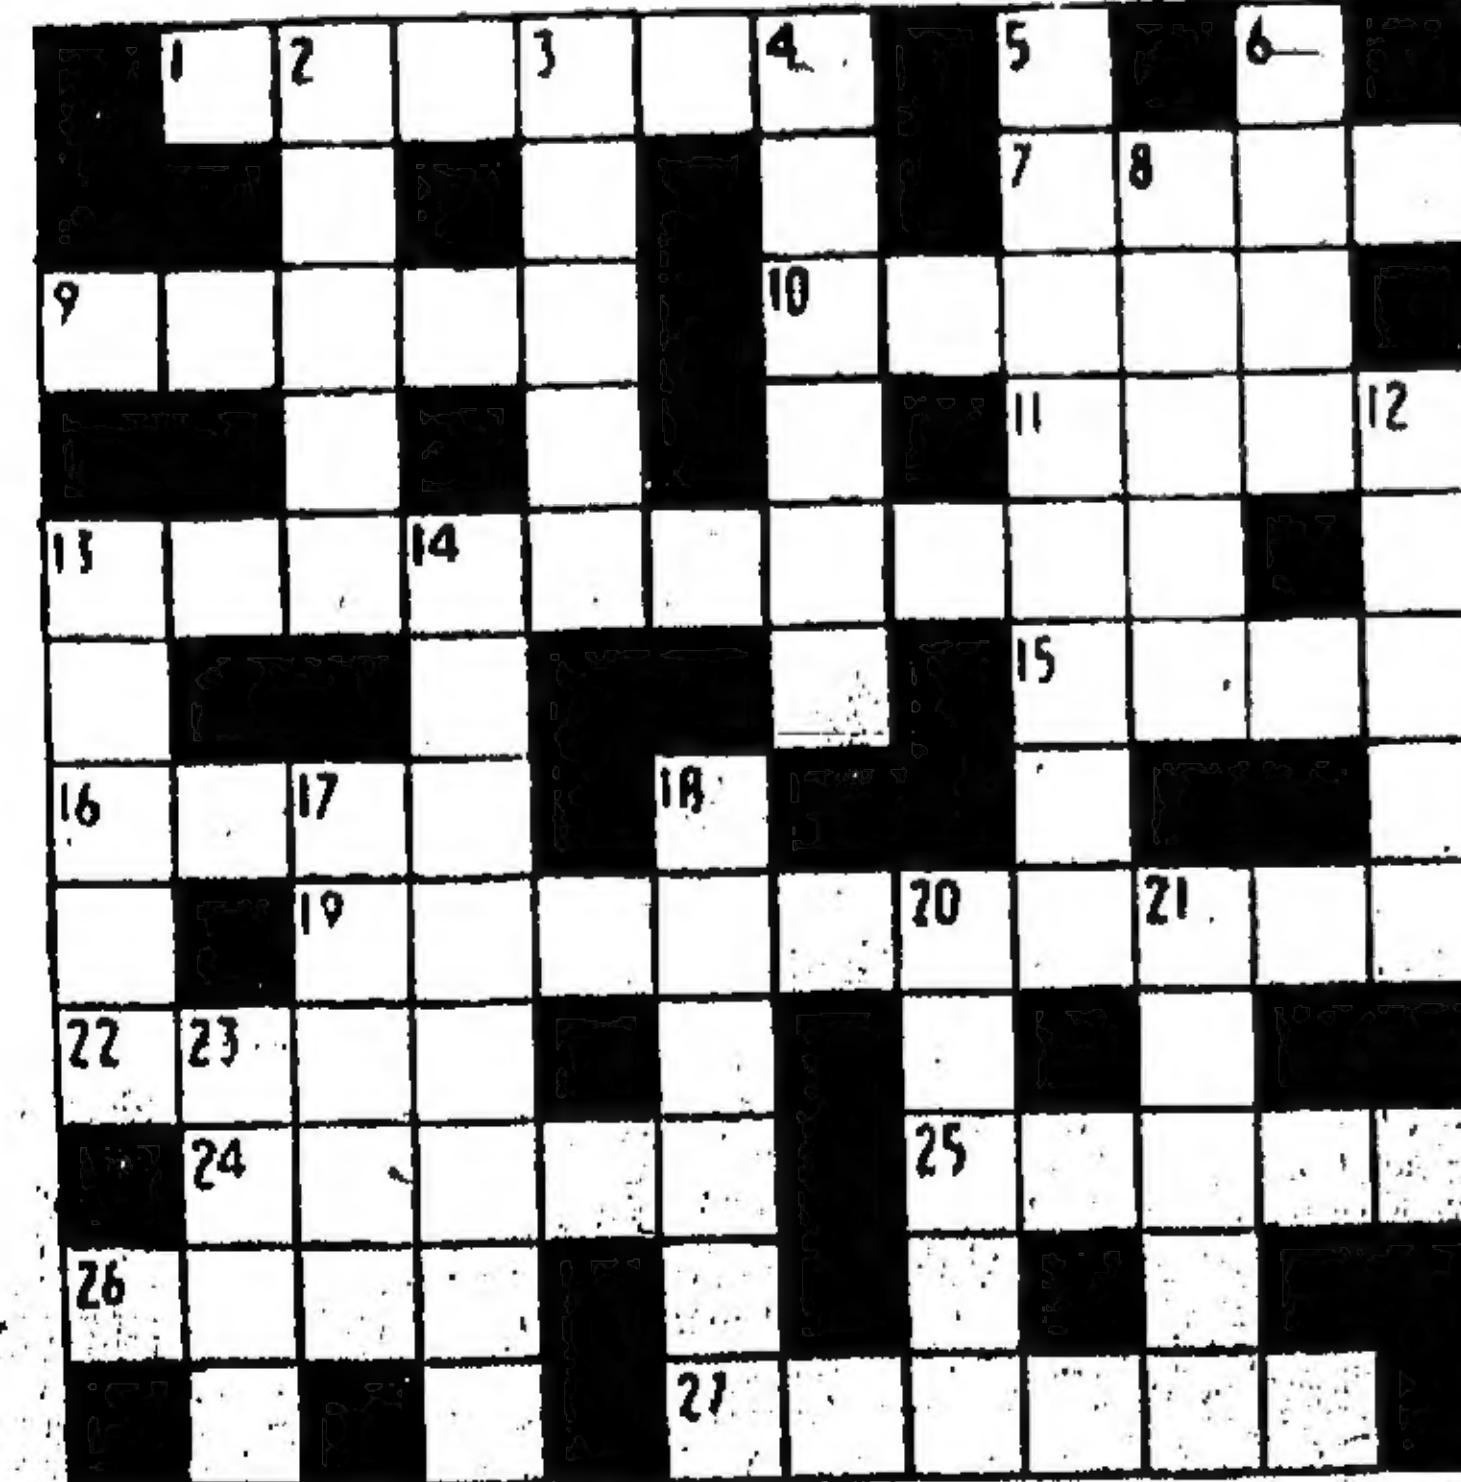

A Swedish news paper was quoted as noting the absence, so far, of official United States reaction. Reuter.

The Vatican And Pakistan

Karachi, Oct. 8. Pakistan and the Vatican have agreed to exchange diplomatic missions, the Foreign Ministry announced today.

The announcement said that they would establish Legations with the object of "mainaining and further strengthening the friendly relations already existing between Pakistan and the Holy See."—Reuter.

Ringing Down The Curtain On Festival Of Britain

RUSTLERS IN NEW FOREST

Southampton, Oct. 7. A gang of rustlers have been trapping wild ponies in the 225-square mile New Forest near here and selling them to blackmarket horse slaughterers. So far the gang has eluded police patrols. Now squads of men, who live in hamlets in the Forest, go out every night armed with cudgels and shot-guns to protect the ponies. But they have been unable to catch any members of the gang, who use lorries and vans to take away the ponies.

It was then about 80 miles away on its way here from Malta.

The wireless operator asked for a weather report over Nicosia. This was immediately given by the control at Nicosia but it was not clear whether the plane picked up the report.

Directly afterwards all contact ceased and the plane simply vanished, blown northwards by a 30-knot south wind.

When an R.A.F. search over a wide area of the sea-lane between Cyprus and Turkey yielded no result, Turkish Air Force assistance was asked for.

This was readily given and it was actually a Turkish aircraft which spotted the wreck—near Namur, a few minutes before 4 p.m. on Sunday. Until this afternoon, R.A.F. information was that the plane carried a crew of seven of whom five had been killed and two injured.—Reuter.

Throughout the attack the Australians had the support of the entire Divisional artillery. A stream of 25-pounder shells from the massed guns covered their positions for most of the night—and in certain of the ground, flaming steel that the Communists did their utmost to pierce.

On their flank, companies of the King's Own Scottish Borderers and the King's Shropshire Light Infantry poured heavy machine-gum fire down on the Chinese troops as they tried to reinforce the attackers.

Finally the attack broke and the Chinese fled.

Heavy air and artillery bombardments continued to blast the Chinese rear positions throughout the day and, shortly before dusk the Australians advanced to seize the remaining Communist strongpoints.

"Britain's first Commonwealth Division has been well blooded and the Chinese have got a bloody nose," the Divisional Commander said, summing up conditions.

ALL MR CHURCHILL'S PREVIOUS VOLUMES OF SECOND WORLD WAR MEMOIRS WERE SERIALISED EXCLUSIVELY IN HONGKONG IN THE CHINA MAIL. THE FIFTH BOOK, ENTITLED "CLOSING THE RING," BEGAN ON THIS PAGE YESTERDAY. THIS VOLUME COVERS THE YEAR FROM SICILY TO THE NORMANDY LANDINGS

FOR reasons of policy we had hitherto yielded the command and direction of the campaign in Northwest Africa to the United States. At the beginning they were preponderant in numbers and influence. In the months that had passed since "Torch" began, the arrival of the victorious Eighth Army from the Desert and the building up in Tunisia of the British First Army had given us the proportion there of 11 British divisions to four American. Nevertheless I strictly adhered to the theme that "Torch" was an American expedition, and in every way supported Gen. Eisenhower's position as Supreme Commander.

By our cover plans, the enemy were kept in doubt until the last moment where our stroke would fall. Our naval movements and military preparations in Egypt suggested an expedition to Greece. Since the fall of Tunis, they had sent more planes to the Mediterranean, but the additional squadrons had gone, not to Sicily.

On the American front the air fuel. No enemy outpost now remained south of Sicily. Intense air attack upon Sicily began on July 3 with the bombing of airfields, both there and in Sardinia, which made many unusable. The enemy fighters were thrown on to the defensive, and their long-range bombers forced to withdraw their bases to the Italian mainland. Four of the five transports operating across the Straits of Messina were sunk. By the time our convoys were approaching the island air superiority was firmly established, and Axis warships and aircraft made no serious effort to interfere with the seaborne assault.

On the American front the air landings were also too widely dispersed, but the many small parties creating damage and confusion inland worried the Italian coastal divisions. The sea-borne landings, under continuous fighter protection, were everywhere highly successful. Syracuse and Pachino on the British front, Licata and Gela on the American, were captured. The Eighth Army took Augusta on the 12th.

The major effort of the Eighth Army was now directed against the airfields at Catania and Gerbini. Aided by more airborne and seaborne landings of paratroopers and Commando troops, which captured vital bridges, the Army crossed the river Simeto. But now German troops from further west reinforced the Italians and progress beyond the river was stopped. On the 16th the left flank of the Eighth Army reached Callagirone, in close touch with the Americans, who were also pressing westwards along the coast and had taken Poro Empedocle.

SICILY CONQUERED BY ALLIED ARMIES

By Winston S. Churchill

It was, however, understood in practice that Gen. Alexander as Eisenhower's Deputy had the full operational command. It was in these circumstances that the victory of Tunis was gained and the general picture presented to the American public and to the world as an overriding United States enterprise.

But now we had entered upon a new stage—the invasion of Sicily, and what should follow from it. The proportions of the armies available in July 1943, were: British, eight divisions; United States, six; Air, the United States 55 percent; British, 43; Naval, 80 percent British. Besides all this there remained the considerable British armies in the Middle East and in the Eastern Mediterranean, including Libya, which were independently commanded by Gen. Maitland Wilson, from the British headquarters at Cairo.

But did not seem too much in these circumstances that we should have at least an equal share of the High Command. And this was willingly conceded by our loyal comrades. We were, moreover, given the direct conduct of the fighting. Alexander was to command the Fifteenth Army Group, consisting of the Seventh United States and the Eighth British Armies. Air Marshal Tedder commanded the Allied Air Force, and Adm. Cunningham the Allied naval forces. The whole was under the overall command of Gen. Eisenhower.

The British assault was entrusted to Gen. Montgomery and his Eighth Army, while Gen. Patton was nominated to command the United States Seventh Army. The naval collaborators were Adm. Ramsay, who had planned the British landings in "Torch," and Adm. Hewitt, U.S.N., who with Gen. Patton had carried out the Casablanca landing. In the air the chief commanders under Air Chief Marshal Tedder were Gen. Sopwith, U.S. Army Air Force, and Air Marshal Cunningham, while the air operations in conjunction with the Eighth Army were in the hands of Air Vice-Marshal Broadhurst, who had recently added to his fame of the Western Desert Air Force.

WORLD'S ONLY WOMAN SHIP ENGINEER

SHE SAVED HER BOMBED SHIP

STAYING with her mother in Fleet, Hants, on a brief shore leave is Miss Victoria Drummond, the world's only woman ship chief engineer.

Her mother is Mrs Geraldine Margaret Drummond, daughter of the first Lord Arthurs of Hackney, and widow of Captain Drummond of Megginch Castle, Fife, with a 900-year-old family tree.

Miss Drummond is a godchild of Queen Victoria. She signed on for five years apprenticeship to a Dundee engineering and shipbuilding firm.

The firm wished to keep her on as a journeyman but she had a job in the engine-room of an ocean-going ship.

When war came Miss Drummond was a second engineer. Sailing to America her ship was bombed and damaged.

Miss Drummond took charge. Burning oil spouted into her face but she repaired the damage and kept the screws turning till the attack was over.

AWARDED MBE

For this she was given an MBE, and awarded Lloyd's Medal for gallantry at sea. When peace came she held the Atlantic Star, the Pacific Star, the Africa Star and the War Medal. Allied governments also decorated her.

LOADING TIMBER

Miss Drummond is a chief engineer. She has recently been loading timber in the Arctic ports of Russia.

With her to Russia and on many of the world's oceans sailed Ginger, her cat. He twice accompanied his mistress through the Iron Curtain, but Ginger has now "swallowed the anchor" and lives at Mrs Drummond's home.

Effective Home-Manicure

The first-ever ready-to-wear to bear a couture label will be worn by Claire Bloom, twenty-year-old actress who has been selected by Chaplin to play the star part in his new film "Limelight," which is to be made in Hollywood. Claire is seen here (at left) wearing Digby Morton's cocktail dress in dark green ribbed silk with full skirt and heavy black braiding. At right, she wears a fine wool travel coat of soft grey, with full back, deep pockets and wide sleeves coming into tight cuffs, also by the same designer.

When conditions look just about hopeless, precede the creaming with a five-minute soaking in hot mineral oil. That is a favourite treatment in some beauty shops when the customer has neglected her talons for a long time. Put a cream on the oiled surfaces, friction it in. That is one way to retain the delicacy of nails that thicken and lose nice colouring.

When washing your hands after an outdoor session in the garden, add a little yellow corn meal to the suds. It will dig out those dingy lines in the knuckles that often appear to vex a hard-working woman.

Use a nail brush. While washing your hands, pass a nail white pencil under the eaves. Wonderful the way it will clear away dust.

It isn't enough to apply polish. Nails must be kept in a healthy condition to be beautiful.

EXOTIC: PERSIAN RICE

Into a 2 qt. sauce pan measure 1 1/2 c. dry rice. Add 4 1/2 c. boiling water and 1/2 tsp. salt. Boil slowly 5 min.; then simmer until the rice is dry and flaky, about 23 min. Meantime melt 3 tbsp. butter or margarine.

Add 1/2 c. any kind broken nuts, 3/4 c. raisins and 1 tsp. cinnamon. Cook gently 5 min., with a fork stir into the cooked rice; keep hot 15 min. to season through. Transfer to a buttered baking dish; then heat in the oven for 10 min. Serve with meat or as dessert with honey and cream.

Note: For an exotic touch, add 3 tbsp. minced candied or preserved ginger.

How to put up with:

Those Last-minute Guests!

Keep on hand a freshly-washed cotton robe and a pair of clean terry or straw slippers for those last-minute guests who have been pressed to stay overnight and who obviously have not come equipped for such an invitation. A guest room should be equipped with a comfortable chair or two, and bureau drawers should be freshly lined with clean paper. A small kit containing toothbrush, small jars of cold cream, cleansing cream, small boxes of powder in various tints, a lamp that really lights, and a clock. The guest closet should hold tissues, a vacuum type jug and glass with water or milk, a lamp that really lights, and a clock. The guest closet should contain plenty of hangers, not those makeshift wire ones, but nicely padded or plastic hangers. Skirt hangers, trouser hangers, hat stands and shoe racks will be appreciated, too.

te blend with the room scheme and there is an inexpensive, extra lounge, that when it is necessary to be easily folded up and stowed away.

Whatever type of sleeping accommodation is provided, the mattress, pillows, linen and blankets should be in good condition, the bed well made, with an extra blanket handy. A convenient night table should hold tissues, a vacuum type jug and glass with water or milk, a lamp that really lights, and a clock. Attached Headboards

There are inexpensive new rollaway cots with attached headboards that require no dismantling when folding up the cot. This number is swell for those who like to read in bed before going to sleep.

A rollaway cot is nice as an extra piece for the living room or sun porch at home. All it needs is bolsters and a slipcover.

NOW the only place where you can find a purple sweet huckleberry good enough to make into pie," Pixie O'Scowl was saying to Pixie McSnoozie. "Is down on the other side of the hill, beyond the pond, beyond the sloping meadow, beyond the grove of pine trees and beyond the brook that runs beside the willows."

"Too far," said Pixie McSnoozie yawning.

"Here's the basket," Pixie O'Scowl said sharply, pushing the basket into Pixie McSnoozie's hand. "Pick a huckleberry and hurry right back again. We want huckleberry pie for dinner."

Much Too Sleepy

"Much too far," yawned Pixie McSnoozie again. "And I'm much too sleepy. Ho-hummm."

"Pixie O'Scowl shook him to keep him from dozing off."

It was at this moment that Knarf and Handi, the shadow-children with the turned-about-names, came along. Pixie O'Scowl explained about the purple sweet huckleberry on the far side of the hill. "He's just too lazy to go. And I haven't got time. I've got to clean the house, weed the garden, string up a clothesline, beat the rug, polish the shoes, mend the socks and do a few more things which I'll think of later on. But we've got to have huckleberry pie for dinner."

"Too far," said Pixie McSnoozie, mumbled in his sleep.

"All right," said Knarf. "I'll go."

"So will I," said Handi, seeing that it's so far to the far side of the hill will you please do it for me?"

"Of course," said Pixie O'Scowl.

Handi wondered why Knarf should ask such a favour. She was quite sure, though, that he must have some good reason.

As far as Pixie O'Scowl, he simply said, "All right—be small." He snapped his fingers and Knarf and Handi instantly became as small as pins. "Or, to put it another way, as small as pixies."

Picking up the basket, Knarf took Handi's hand. "We'll be right back!" he shouted to Pixie O'Scowl. Then he ran with Handi down to the little pool where the water-lilies grew. The instant they reached the pool, Knarf made Handi jump with him onto one of the flat green water-lily leaves that floated on the water. Then Knarf put two fingers in his mouth and whistled.

A second later there was a sound like a great aeroplane. A blue and yellow dragon-fly with two sets of wings alit on the water-lily leaf. "Here's our ser-plane," Knarf said to Handi. "Jump on his back!" No sooner were they on the dragon-fly's back than Knarf said to it, "Fly us as far as you can toward the hill." The dragon-fly nodded, buzzed its wings and was off.

Whistled Again

It took them as far as the pond. Then Knarf whistled again. This time a large golden butterfly alit before them. "Take us as far as you can go toward the hill," ordered Knarf as they climbed on its back. The butterfly fluttered up and took them to the other side of the sloping meadow.

Then they took a flying beetle across the grove of pine trees, and a hornet across the brook that ran beside the willows, and a wasp to the far side of the hill where the purple sweet huckleberry grew.

With the purple sweet huckleberry in the basket, they ran back to Pixie O'Scowl. "What's Knarf already?" he exclaimed.

"Why, I've hardly had time to string up the clothesline and beat the rug. But it is a beautiful huckleberry and I'll start baking the pie at once!"

"Too far—much too far—but I wish we could have purple sweet huckleberry pie for dinner tonight," Pixie McSnoozie was murmuring as he sleepily rubbed his eyes.

And Knarf said, "You will have it, you sleepy head" as he and Handi walked off.

Eccentric Bidding Guided by A Plan

THE bidding of today's hand was a bit peculiar. East's overall in spades was so thin that it was practically invisible. East didn't want to pass tamely when the opponents had a part score.

SINGAPORE SERVICES IN A SOUND POSITION AGAINST ARMY AT SOOKUNPOO

At the end of the first day's play of their two-day cricket match yesterday at Sookunpoo, the Singapore Combined Services were in a more favourable position than the local Army XI.

Neither the Army bowling nor their batting met with any great success, conceding 191 runs to the visitors during their first lease at the wicket, and losing six wickets for 86 runs by the close of yesterday's play.

Leaving much to be desired, too, was the fielding of the Army. There were at least five missed catches, but they were too difficult to merit much blame. The throw-ins, however, cost them at least three wickets, despite a good 10-yard direct hit that dismissed Tomlinson.

The Combined Services, who have to lose a match yet in their Hongkong series again showed a well-balanced side with improved performance in the batting.

Though none of their batting line-up could be described as distinctly brilliant, any of the eleven is worth 30 runs. The backbone of the batting strength lies in F/O Cosh, Capt. Marriott, Lt. Badham, Lt. Tomlinson, LREMC Chaplin and Major Bennett when he gets medium-paced leg break bowler Woolacombe and left-arm slow off-break bowler Nicholson did not improve.

It was not until the last few overs before lunch that the wicket showed more life, and Bailey broke in sharply in the first over of his second spell, grazed off Marriott's pads and dislodged the leg balls.

Nine minutes later, Bailey followed up a no-ball by getting Simpson leg-before.

Marriott played a forceful innings for his 36, scoring mainly with leg pulls, and square cuts.

The wicket yesterday was such that both skippers were probably hoping that they would lose the toss. A slightly wet outfield gave the indication that it was more a batting wicket, but likely to be a spin attack.

The fact that Army did have a good array of spin-bowlers and the fact that they could still knock up the required runs for a win at their second knock on the second day, might have been the factors which induced Capt. Haynes, who won the toss, to put the visitors in to bat.

The Services captain confessed that he was rather surprised at the decision, saying that he would have definitely batted first, more especially had he won the toss, especially when he did not have any spin attack.

Cosh played a good defensive innings, showing an excellent defence, neither stepping up nor going back for the ball, but sitting on the ball at the crease.

Most of his runs came from pulls to the fine-leg and the square leg occasional square cuts.

Grace claimed his second wicket without any addition to the score, when he made a beautiful overhead catch off his own bowling to a half-volley by Alderson.

At 138, Tomlinson, who with Badham looked as if they were set for a good partnership, was run out trying to steal a run from a half-wicket ball.

Bennett, the next man in game, a sparkling knock of 27 runs, the score book reading 3, 4, 6, 2, 4, 2, 4 and two singles, before mistiming a ball to give second slip an easy catch.

A switch on to a spin combination of right arm

Davenport gave an easy catch forward point. Buckley and Nicholson replacing Hockney, got Badham lbw after beating him with his first three deliveries. The innings closed at tea-time for 191.

Most successful bowler was Grace with his medium-paced and leg-breaks.

The Services fast-bowling attack of Davenport, Bailey and Bennett did all the damage in the after-tea session, claiming six Army wickets for 86 runs.

HKCC BEATS THE REST

The two-day Centenary cricket match between the HKCC and the Rest of the Colony ended in a seven-wicket win for the former yesterday.

At the end of the first day's play on Sunday, HKCC had a lead of 70 runs with a score of 216 for nine wickets against the Rest's 148.

The Rest opened their second innings yesterday morning and were dismissed for 125. They lost their first four batsmen for only 16 runs. Top scorer was S. M. Teh (29) closely followed by A. H. Ismail (23). Two of their colleagues to reach double figures were I. M. Omar (17) and A. M. Prata (10).

HKCC replied with 57 runs for three wickets. Their opening pair, T. G. C. Knight and G. H. Pritchard, scored 30 runs between them. Knight chalked up 17.

Scores at the close of yesterday's second innings play were:

Talks On Payments
BalancesGeneva, Oct. 8.
The 31-nation conference on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT)

has begun discussions on trade restrictions and the balance of payments position.

Mr. J. Melander, of Norway, who is the conference chairman, said the discussions had shown so far that member countries were very concerned with the maintenance of quantitative restrictions for balance of payments reasons and regarded such restrictions as a method of carrying out an economic policy.He declared that import restrictions were bound to remain in force for some time.Mr. Willard Thorpe, the United States delegate, said that the dollar shortage problem which confronted many countries today, although more complex, was acute and more diffused. He thought that in spite of the existing uncertainties discrimination could be substantially removed and significant progress made to ward convertibility. —Reuter.He made the statements in an interview in London with the United States News and World Report, a weekly newsmagazine published in Washington.Asked what Britain would do if her appeal to the United Nations Security Council did not succeed, he replied, "We must wait and see."He defended the record of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company which, he said, had "very definitely" contributed to Persia's welfare and he dismissed the allegations that Britain was responsible for corruption and bribery in Iran.Mr. Stokes said that Britain had never questioned Persia's right to nationalise the oil industry but she objected to the break of a contract which had been made in international law.Britain had always been prepared to negotiate a new agreement between the Oil Company and Persia."What the Iranians have done is not nationalisation but expropriation," he said.Asked if he expected oil refineries in Persia to become less important as other countries had developed their own refineries,
Mr. Stokes replied, "It is difficult to answer the question about refineries but I would point out that world consumption of oil products has shown a staggering increase since theCompany said it decided to cut prices now despite the fact that lower wool prices will apply to next season's manufacture. —Associated Press.

BRILLIANT BRITON'S LONE MISSION TO WASHINGTON

Bartering His Brains For Atom Secrets

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

London, Oct. 8.

A modest bespectacled Briton has come on a lone mission to Washington to barter his brains for America's atom secrets.

He is 42-year-old Dr William George Penney, of West Norwood, London. Highly-placed Americans last night rated him as "easily the best mind in the world on atom and hydrogen bomb research."

To get his services they would pay him five times the £3,000 a year he gets from the British Government.

Mr Reginald Albert Camidge, formerly Manager of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, died suddenly in Colombo on October 1, according to news received in the Colony. He is survived by his wife and married daughter who are in Colombo.

The late Mr. Camidge who was about 60 years of age, retired last year. Prior to the Second World War, he served with the Chartered Bank here as a junior and later as manager and was in the Colony for about 20 years.

During the Japanese occupation of Hongkong, Mr. Camidge was imprisoned for 20 months and on his release was interned in Stanley Camp together with his wife.

On liberation Mr. and Mrs. Camidge proceeded on furlough to London from where he was transferred to Colombo where he had settled down upon retirement.

Huge Crowds Visit The Peak

Today is the Chung Yeung or the "Double Nine" Festival, one of the main festivals in the Chinese calendar connected with ancestor worship.

Huge crowds could be seen queuing up in Garden Road for the Peak Tram to the Peak this morning. At one time the line of people stretched from the Garden Station to the bottom of Garden Road, and special Police officers on duty to keep order.

It is a belief among the Chinese that visits to high land on this day will bring them good fortune for the rest of the year.

Several additional buses have been put into service between the Vehicular Ferry bus terminus and Aberdeen, while in Kowloon a number of buses were added to Routes 5, 9 and 13. Seven more buses on Route 11 are travelling from Prince Edward Road, near Flower Market Street, to Ngau Chi Wan, to enable people to reach the cemeteries.

But for purely patriotic reasons Bill Penney has turned down every tempting dollar offer to get him to emigrate with his wife Joan and two sons.

He said the only way the Americans can get his services is by coming into a full-scale atom partnership with Britain.

Bill Penney's reputation is so high that Americans consider his offer is a sound investment. Their own atom secretaries, then billions of dollars.

The United States atom chiefs were impressed by Dr. Penney seven years ago. He put up some ingenious ideas in the secret Los Alamos laboratories in New Mexico where the first atom bombs were designed during the war.

OWN APPARATUS

Before the gigantic trial of the atom bomb at Bikini against warships, scores of uniformed United States scientists spent weeks setting up costly chromium-plated equipment to measure blast, heat and atomic rays.

Dr. Penney, flannel-trousered and tousle-haired, quietly put up an apparatus of his own design.

After the bomb was exploded, throwing millions of tons of radioactive water out of Bikini's lagoon, the scientists excitedly examined their recorders. The streamlined equipment had failed completely.

Dr. Penney examined his own apparatus. It had worked. The Americans had to base estimates on their bomb's power in naval warfare almost entirely on his findings.

Since the war's end Dr. Penney has worked on defence projects at Fort Halstead, an ivy-covered castle built against Napoleon's threatened invasion of England 10 years ago.

He earned the title "Chief Superintendent of Armament Research," which means officially that he is responsible for administering a huge department.

Fortunately for Britain, Dr. Penney has not been tied in his desk job. He has no special talents, he admits.

Paperwork in the department has been taken over by Admiral

Patrick Bokrig, so that Dr. Penney can get on with his work.

What he has achieved is a secret. But the Americans believe it is something sensational.

The United States atom chief, Gordon Dean, told me in Washington last week, "We believe Britain has now made a discovery in the atomic weapons field which would greatly help us."

In pre-war days Dr. Penney was Assistant Professor of Mathematics at London's Imperial College. The plunge into war brought out his exceptional talent for weapons work. Now he has been turned into a temporary diplomat.

FIRST OBJECTIVE

First concession he hopes to gain in Washington is permission for Britain to use an American range for firing her first atom bomb.

This request has been turned down previously by the United States defence chiefs. The "no" was so firm that the Government began building a testing ground in Australia.

If Bill Penney gets them to change minds he will save the British taxpayer £2,000,000 and 18 months of effort on this project alone.

Last night's news from America suggests that Dr. Penney is making headway.

It seems to be more than a coincidence that while he is in Washington a powerful group of Senators has decided for the first time to press in Congress for a fuller atomic partnership with Britain.

$1,000 JUNK CONFISCATED

A $1,000 junk cargo worth $24,340 were confiscated by Mr. R. W. S. Winter at Kowloon this morning when he also fined Leung Ching $500 for attempting to export prohibited goods and carrying cargo on a fishing junk.

Inspector Dower said that at 6:30 a.m. on Sunday last, a Chinese suspect found accused in the junk inside the harbour boom off Shamshuiipo. The accused said he was going to Macao.

In a false bottom of the boat the detective found 98 boxes of welding rods, 100 lbs of welding flux, 27 kerosene tins of grease, 57 rolls of photographic paper and three kerosene tins of unidentified powder.

liberty which should prevail among all nations."

Dr. Mossadegh, who spent the entire trip in bed, was flanked by his doctor son and nurse daughter while he spoke to newsmen. Immediately after Mr. Entezam's limousine and left for New York Hospital, where he will remain in seclusion until Thursday, when he is scheduled to appear before the Security Council.

The Iranian deputy premier, Mr. Hussain Fatemi, told the United Press here today that Iran "is always willing to negotiate with Britain in the framework of our nationalisation law."

He said Iran had wanted to keep negotiations going all the time, but Britain broke them off without any reason.

Mr. Fatemi expressed the hope that American public opinion would support Iran's "justified position" in the oil controversy. — United Press.

Tailor Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter

Yuen Chow-pun, 33, tailor, was sentenced to nine months by the Senior Puisne Judge, Mr Justice Gould, in the Criminal Sessions this morning, when he pleaded guilty to the manslaughter of his cousin, Yuen Pak-kwan, at No. 76 Fuk Wing Street on June 23 last.

Yuen was originally charged with murder to which he pleaded not guilty. His plea of guilty to manslaughter was accepted by the Crown.

Mr. M. Morley-John, Crown Counsel, prosecuted, assisted by Sub-Inspectors E. P. Grace, Mr. A. J. Clifford, instructed by Mr. Charles Ying, appeared for the accused.

The Prosecutor said accused lived with his parents. Sometime in 1948 deceased, who was accused's cousin, and his family came to live with them.

On June 23, accused's father saw a basin of water standing on a trellis outside the doorway of deceased's cubicle being knocked over. Deceased's wife started to mop up the water, helped by accused's wife. Deceased saw this going on and said more water should be poured on the floor, adding that it was the duty of the principal tenant (accused's father) to clean up.

When accused's father said he was the principal tenant, deceased picked up a stool and struck the former on the head, rendering him unconscious. Accused who was on the premises went up to the deceased and a quarrel started. The quarrel led to a push and a fight ensued.

There was no evidence, said the Prosecutor, that accused had anything in his hands at the time. The two men disappeared fighting into the rear cubicle. Accused's younger brother who saw the start of the fight later saw accused holding deceased's face downwards and stabbing him with a scissor blade.

ELEVEN WOUNDS

The Police were later called and both accused and deceased were sent to hospital where upon arrival deceased was found to be dead.

According to medical evidence, the Prosecutor said, there were 11 wounds on deceased's body, and any one of four of those wounds was fatal.

Pleading in mitigation for the accused, Mr. Clifford said the background of the case centred on the old man, father of the accused, who brought up deceased from the age of 10 and educated him to be a Chinese doctor.

The reason was that deceased's father, who was his own brother, was an opium addict and had a large family to support and was therefore unable to bring up all of his own family.

Accused's father was in many ways ill repaid for his kindness by the deceased, said Defence Counsel. The deceased was bad tempered and lost no opportunity to take it out with members of the family.

TYPICAL EXAMPLE

Mr. Clunie pointed out that frequent accidents had occurred by overtaking a bus at a corner and trying to get in the stream of traffic with speed.

Defendant, Tang Chi, driver of lorry 6648, admitted a charge of dangerous driving by overtaking a stationary bus near the junction of Lower Albert Road and Garden Road.

Mr. Clunie said that defendant had a long record from 1948 to 1951.

On reading the record card, the Magistrate remarked that the defendant seemed to have behaved better during the first half of this year.

Defendant stated that he had the defendant and the girl were not new living in harmony.

His Worship remarked that in future cases of this nature, the woman should appear in Court, adding that a woman who did not wish to attend Court could be bound over for preventive justice.

Quoting from a saying by Thackeray, namely, "Women are at the bottom of all trouble," Mr. Lo fined Chau $100 or one month on the second count and $50 or ten days for disorderly behaviour. He was also bound over in $500 for one year.

Mr. Clifford alleged that deceased was the first person who had picked up a weapon with which he stabbed at accused, who dodged and the blade struck accused in the thigh. It caused a deep wound.

Defence Counsel submitted that all the stab wounds were shallow and the deepest was with the exception of one, in his submission, it was that

Living Language

Why we say To pay through the nose.

In the middle ages when, as now, wars had to be paid for, it was often very bad policy for a private citizen to become wealthy, or even to put on a show of being wealthy, for the king or his barons would quickly find a way to tax his wealth out of him. If all else failed his nose would be slit to make him diagorge his wealth. Hence came the expression "to pay through the nose."
